Dedication

We join together in a chorus of thanks to dedicate this issue of THE HUTTLESTONIAN sincerely and gratefully to MRS. MARIE NOYER in appreciation of all she has done to help make our high school days happy and successful.

Foreword

We have grown. Fairhaven High has not been the least of the reasons.

If this HUTTLESTONIAN is successful, it should in some measure reflect this growth. We firmly believe that in intellectual maturity, we have made advances since our freshmen days. Here are listed some of the achievements which are a result of this maturing process . . . although, obviously, no tome can illustrate objectively the inner, subjective changes in a student's concept of living and philosophy of life, nor describe the mosaic of an individual's personal experiences.

In the future, our book will recall the faces and characters of those who shared our experience, and the events which marked the steps of our progress. If, then, we see these cherished events from a new perspective, it will be because Fairhaven High School prepared us for continued growth. For this the school will hold our love, and the teachers our gratitude.

JUNIORS

Don't tell me you've never been through Fairhaven High School -- the high citadel of knowledge, the intellectual center of the U. S., and the producer of the world's greatest athletes? Oh, no! This is incredible! To think that you have never seen the rooms where such renowned geniuses, business potentiaries, and celebrities as Alberta Einstone, Ding Crosly, Betty Dable, and Ted Hilliams once studied. But such a grave deficiency must definitely be corrected! So come in; we ourselves will take you through.

Our first part of call is Room 5, where, to our surprise, we see a small box labeled "Donations." "What's the idea?" we ask Miss Kenney. "Are you collecting money to buy togas for cold Romans?"

"Oh, no!" she informs us. "I'm trying to get enough to buy a wire recorder. My third-year Latin class speaks so fluently that I'll just have to take down everything they say and play it over later. What other way is there to understand them?"

After giving the little box our two cents, we file out and head for the other side of the building. In Room 9, we find

Miss Libbey balancing books and goldfish bowls. In Room 10, Mr. Dias is almost completely hidden by Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, in which he is vigorously looking up the long words which the Juniors have used in their compositions. "I never ever knew such words existed," he protests, as we chide him for his bewilderment.

Continuing on to Room 11, we notice that Miss Boucher is filing her retirement papers. Her French classes are apparently so far advanced that they are capable of carrying on their own classes "sans une maitresse."

Mounting to the second floor, our attention is attracted by the sight of Mr. Lawton who is, of all places, in Mrs. Modesto's art class. Here he is painting the Juniors' names on signs to replace the former mathematical geniuses on the walls of Room 6.

Stepping aside so that Mrs. Cromie and her bushel-basket of card money may get by, we proceed to the lab, where poor Mr. Boyce is tearing his hair out in an attempt to analyze the new formula which the chemistry class has cooked up. As we understand it, it's a new fuel which makes any car run, even one without a motor.

We are suddenly jolted by a series of piercing shrieks descending from the 3rd floor. Don't be afraid, it's only Miss Hoyle trying to surpass our public speaking Juniors. Poor woman, they've got her beaten a mile.

Hastening down the stairs, we almost interrupt a conference between Mrs. Noyer and Miss Delaney. It seems that these poor ladies have the problem of relabeling all the typewriter keys. The Juniors go so fast that they have already worn the letters off three times, and one machine almost collapsed under the strain.

Oh, yes! We haven't shown you the addition yet, have we? But first let's stop at the coaches' office. Here we find Mr. Entin and Mr. Clement, both looking worried. They're trying to figure out how in the world they can ever defeat New Bedford in '49 when all their star athletes will be over in Athens -- the Olympics, you know.

Oh, for gosh sakes! The girls basketball team is practicing today. Well, we can never get through that bunch of Amazons and make it to the addition, so let's postpone that trip and call it a day. We'll be seeing you!

SOPHOMORES

We, the ambitious class of 1951, are striving for the laudable day when we graduate, and go forward into the world, seeking our fortunes. Whether we choose a scientific or artistic field, or go off into the business world, we will never forget the many pleasant hours we spent in school preparing for our goal. We aim to be the leaders of tomorrow and are, therefore, preparing ourselves for the work in the future.

To the Senior Class of nineteen forty-nine, we send our congratulations, and we wish them the best of luck in all the years to come. We hope their fine example as upper classmen will be followed by all the future Senior classes.

FEATURES

Last Will and Testament

We, the notorious class of 1949, realizing that we are on the way to the wide open spaces, fearing that we shall soon be infirm in mind and spirit, mindful of our faults and temptations, and filled with a remarkable blend of facts and hokum, do hereby continue the custom of the past by composing our last will and testament. To the faculty we leave classes extending into infinity and equally as industrious (ahem) as the class of 1949. Terms following with a few hi lee, hi-lows thrown in for good measure, otherwise to wit, etc., abs, re., ibid., adfin., W.E.S.C. and P.D.Q.

Item I—Madeline Rebello leaves a finished model schooner to Mr. Parkinson as a token of remembrance. (As if he could ever forget!)

Item II—Joyce Oliver leaves her array of peasant blouses to Dot Dubois. We hope you will look as well in them as Joyce has.

Item III—Margie Linhares leaves a lesson on entertaining to any Junior who has no plans for December 31, 1949.

Item IV—Ralph Rigby leaves the presidency of the Bo Club to its only surviving member, Harry Greene. As president you are entitled to a season ticket to the W.E.S.C.

Item V—Alice Jones leaves her gym suit to anyone—just anyone!

Item VI—Bill MacBrayne leaves his pipe to Audrey Brisson and Natalie Bartlett to be used for peace purposes. We don't want to hear of any more hair-raising experiences at F. H. S.

Item VII—George Armbruster leaves his neckerchiefs to any Junior who is afraid of catching cold while getting $100 worth of ads. It's the gypsy in him!

Item VIII—Norman Converse leaves to Barbara Beaumont a book on English vocabulary to prevent her from making any more errors like "Pardon me for protruding!"

Item IX—Barbara Dobson leaves her pensive moments and a portrait of "The Thinker" to Bill Donaghy.

Item X—Sherman Kinney leaves to Dave Sameiro a lesson on how to carry on a love affair during training. (We don't advise you to walk past 5 Laurel Street holding hands unless you are in excellent condition).

Item XI—Joanella Gibbons leaves her position as the social butterfly of F. H. S. to Sandra McMahon—life is just one mad whirl.

Item XII—John Belcher leaves his overalls to big "Tex" Boehler—or perhaps Ringling Bros. is in the market for new equipment.

Item XIII—Al Perry leaves his Charles Atlas course to Charlie Feener. We hope it does more for you than it did for Al.

Item XIV—Sheila Wing leaves the trinkets and identification bracelets that she has collected during her high school career to Rachel King.

Item XV—The Lewis brothers leave their position as chief entertainers of F. H. S. to Edmund Lewis and Dick Norman—to you from failing hands we throw the torch.

Item XVI—Shirle Wall leaves her chipped hip to any Junior who enjoys night swimming. (?!!)

Item XVII—The seniors on the football team leave autographed pictures to Edith Hunton. You'll get only one of each so you'd better not sell these!

Item XVIII—Frances Telford leaves her legs to Teddy Baldwin to give him needed support during next year's basketball season.

Item XIX—The senior class leaves Mr. Lawton a space in the classified ads of "The Fairhaven Star" so that he can sell all the megaphones and public address systems he has collected in the wills of previous years.

Item XX—Leonard Hathaway leaves his role as lover and his ability to make the ladies swoon, as proved in senior play rehearsals, to Donald Tucker.

Item XXI—Maurice Demanche leaves his position as end on the football team together with a bottle of Energine to keep his letter clean to Allen Simmons.

Item XXII—The girls of the southern end of the girls' cafeteria leave to Thelma Church some of the aftersession slips with which she so generously showered them all year.

Item XXIII—Sylvia Frost leaves her charm to Jackie Burke. The charm works particularly well during the fall repair season. Keep your eye on the steeple jacks.

Item XXIV—Manny Perry leaves a flashlight and a theatre ticket stub to Gene Goldberg. (Stay out of the balcony if you are going steady.)

Item XXV—Lazarus Gulecas leaves his accident insurance to Bill Waite.

Item XXVI—The class leaves the following books to the school library:

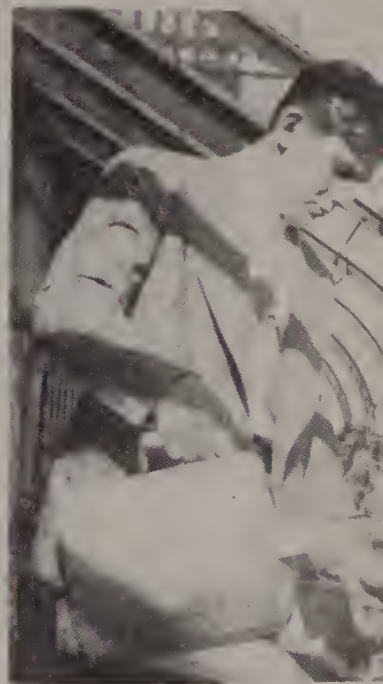

- "The Clinging Vine" by Edna Simmons
- "Living Dangerously" by Eleanor Tinkham
- "Forever Amy" by Alfred Portway
- "On Throwing a Party" by Janice Hadfield
- "The Stocking and I" by Russell Jepson
- "The Importance of Science" by Mildred VanderPol
- "The Long Way Home" by Teresa McGinnis
- "The Lost Shoe" by Maureen Mahoney
- "How to Behave on Halloween" by Barbara Sylvia
- "The Politician's Handbook" by Nancy Richards
- "Through the Portholes" by Barbara Silveria
- "Tales of Herbert" by Charles Dunn
- "This Worthless World" by Donald Merchant
- "Smiles" by Alice Lipinski
- "The Perfect Crime" by Alfred Raphael
- "Mr. Entin and I" by Joan Rovario

Whereas, after much scratching of heads and splintering of fingers, we hereby appoint Dana, the janitor, as executor of this, our last document. To this we place our seal on the fifth day of February in the year of our Lord, Nineteen Hundred and Forty-nine.

CLASS OF '49 MAKES GOOD

CROWDS SEE GALA ANDRADE PREMIERE

Feb. 24, 1959 (F. H. S.)

Even the well-known cynic, Barbara Greenhill, termed Miss Andrade's latest endeavor the greatest success of the current theatrical season. Under the capable direction of Louise Kruger, Ellen Simonsen and Allerton Delano, who are fast taking the place of Lunt and Fontanne, they presented the performance of their careers. The exotic Miss Pacheco was a member of the able supporting cast. The play will run for two weeks at Quirk's Pope Beach Theatre.

PISTOL MATCHES HELD

Much to their embarrassment, Fairhaven police have discovered an Annie Oakley in their midst. Ethel Faria came off with all honors at the policeman's pistol matches with 999 out of a possible 1000 points.

SENATE INVESTIGATES FIRM

Feb. 24, 1959 (F. H. S.)

The Senate investigation of the law firm of Eddy, Eddy, Eldridge, and Eldridge brought to light astounding facts concerning the Collins-Jones breach of promise suit recently in the headlines.

DEBATE PLANNED

Feb. 24, 1959 (F. H. S.)

Secretary of Labor, "Moose" Medeiros and former Democratic Representative, Edward Souza will meet in a debate here March 15. They will debate the question "Should prohibition return?"

Patronize Our Advertisers

A HAM IS HANDY

Through facilities of a "ham" radio operated by David Marra, Mrs. Manuel Perry, the former Miss Lorraine Martin, chatted with her husband who was flying a load of coal over Germany in a C-54 Skymaster.

NURSES HIRED

Dr. John Malcolm has hired nurses Barbara Sylvia, Mary-Jean Mathews, and Frances Fredette for the new hospital established by the Joyce Oliver Fund.

THREE SEEK LEGISLATIVE SEAT

Feb. 25, 1959 (F. H. S.)

The contest between State Representative, Nancy Richards, Republican, seeking re-election next Tuesday in the 9th District, and Albert Perry, Democrat, is the second political battle in which these two have engaged. A very close race is predicted.

BRIDGE COMPLETED

Feb. 25, 1959 (F. H. S.)

World famous engineer, Dave Jenney, has just realized his childhood dream and seen the completion of his bridge connecting Alaska and Russia. Both Mr. Jenney and the Cruz-Correia Construction Company are to be feted at the home of Ambassador Armbruster.

PORTWAY OFFERED POST

Feb. 25, 1959 (F. H. S.)

To be a member of the Fairhaven High School chapter of the National Honor Society has always been either the aim or the dream of each individual of the student body. The strict rules of membership regarding scholarship and service, as well as the lofty ideals of the society, have made it a privilege and a highly esteemed honor to be a member.

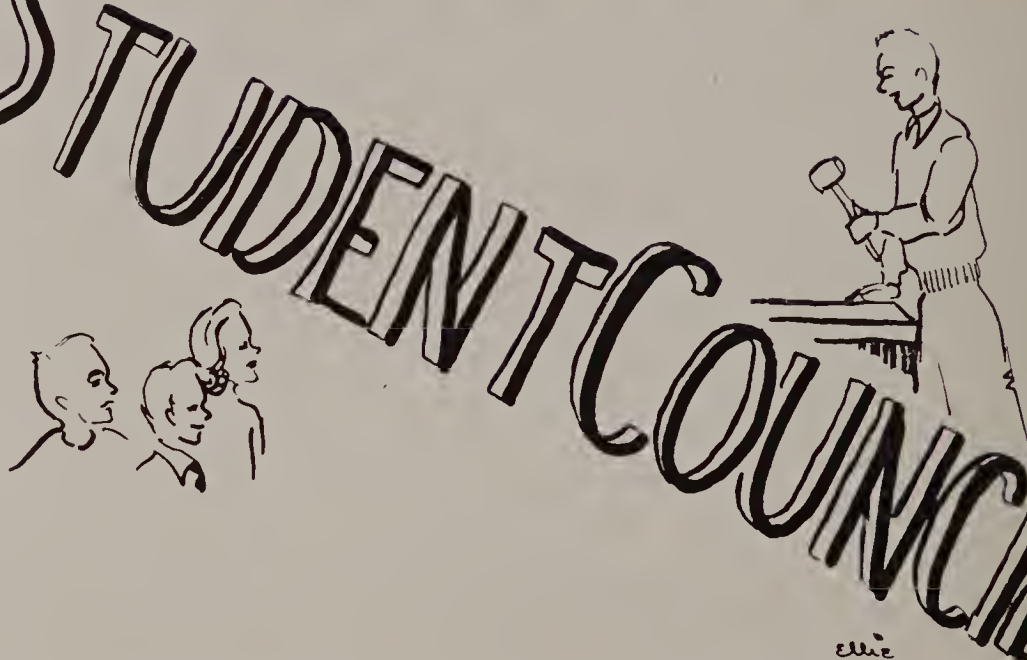

It is the purpose of the society to stimulate the student body to greater achievements in scholarship, leadership, character, and service so that each person might become the honor student of today, and, more importantly, a good citizen of tomorrow.

David Jenney '49

STUDENT COUNCIL

The chief purpose of this organization is to give the student body an opportunity to take part in the democratic government of the school. In addition to its usual activities, the Student Council is raising an "Assembly Fund," which will prove to be a valuable asset toward future assemblies.

The council discusses various problems brought before it by the members, as representatives of the students of the High School.

The officers presiding this year under the supervision of Mr. Earl J. Dias are the following: Randall Haydon, President; Russell Jepson, Vice-President, and Carol Terry, Secretary-Treasurer.

Doris Carter '49

A fairly new organization, the Key Club of Fairhaven High School, has become one of the most active groups in the school. Following the example of the Kiwanis Club, after which it is patterned, the club has worked to serve the school as the Kiwanis Club serves the city. The annual Career Day has been run successfully for the third consecutive time. A photography contest has been sponsored, and numerous other important, though less conspicuous services, have been performed.

Membership in the club is limited to boys in the three upper classes, ranking fairly high scholastically, who have shown themselves to be leaders in the school or community.

The club and the faculty advisor, Mr. Downing, have been assisted in planning and completing service projects by the members of the New Bedford Kiwanis Club.

David Jenney '49

ORCHESTRA

The musical fifty-five members of the Fairhaven High Senior Orchestra are a group of which we are all justly proud. Led by their able concert mistress, Miss Sylvia Frost, the members play at assemblies, the Senior Class Play, the May Festival, and graduation. This year, for the second time, the orchestra will attend the State Music Festival.

We, the members of F. H. S., take our hats off to you, the music-makers of our school, who have displayed remarkable skill and have provided us with a great deal of refreshing entertainment.

Patricia Sylvia '50

With a combined total of seventy members, our band is once again upholding the fine tradition of F. H. S. Each of its three divisions, the Senior, Junior, and Marching Bands, is continually demonstrating its musical ability as the year progresses.

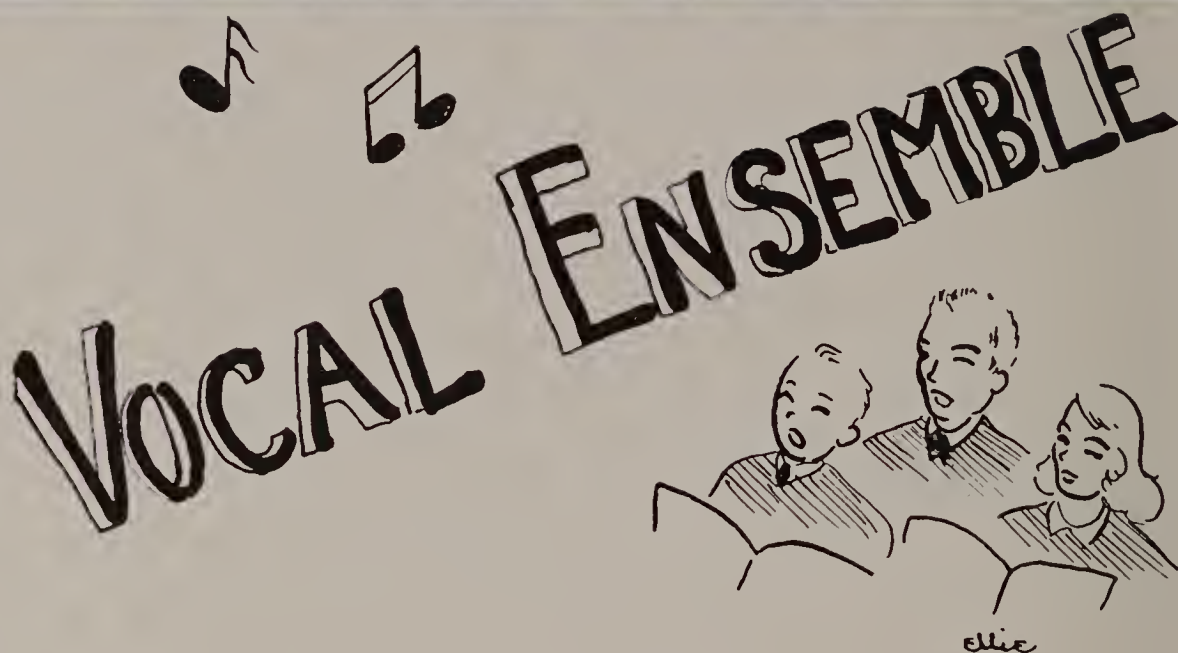

The program for these groups is both extensive and varied. Among other activities, they sponsor an annual Pops Concert, participate in the State and New England Music Festivals, and march in the Memorial Day Parade. They also frequently perform at school assemblies and football games.

The entire band is attempting to find the means of purchasing badly needed equipment, so that its future accomplishments may continue to be as excellent as the ones which we have witnessed this year.

Robert Barrows '50

VOCAL ENSEMBLE

As in previous years, the Vocal Ensemble group is proudly displaying good voice, appearance, and form. This statement will, undoubtedly, be unanimously seconded by the various audiences who have heard these talented, young people perform.

Several of their audiences include: The Rhode Island Naval Base, local granges, The Mattapoissett P. T. C., The Lyman Class and the Order of DeMolay. Moreover, the group has taken part in National Education Week, The New England Music Festival, and National Music Week.

They sang at the Baccalaureate Service for the seniors, and at their graduation. However, the real feather in their cap is the fact that they were called upon to supply the vocal program for the Bristol County Teachers' Convention.

Indeed, they have proved to be an asset which Fairhaven High can really be proud to call its own.

Barbara Pearson '50

Depuis sa renaissance en Octobre, 1948, les assemblées du cercle Français deviennent de plus intéressantes. Les réunions sont animées de musique française, de littérature, et de jeux.

Le principe fondamental est de parler le doux parler français, et le but du cercle est d'intéresser les élèves de français à la civilisation française.

Les principaux moyens employés et auxquels tous prennent plaisir sont des lectures, des souvenirs de France, des vues, des disques, et des petites saynètes.

Les officiers choisis en Octobre sont:

Le président—Robert Barrows

Le vice-président—Ralph Rigby

La trésorière—Judith Eldridge

La secrétaire—Jean Mathews

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The plot of this year's comedy, "Ring Around Elizabeth," was exactly what its title implies. Elizabeth Cherry (Maureen Mahoney) was the center or the victim of the ring. She was a tired and downtrodden wife whose personality and talents had been strifled by the selfish demands of her family. The story revolves around Elizabeth, but it isn't a smooth cycle. Charl Armstrong, the author, provided a plot with a twist, or rather several twists, for it resembled a roller coaster, spinning and turning and ending up in the place from which it started.

Leonard Hathaway played Ralph Cherry, the domineering husband, the heel of the boot that was stamping out Elizabeth's character. Finally, encouraged by her old school chum (Kay Murphy), Elizabeth decided to break away from the ring that hemmed her in. Her method was not to break through the ring, or to try to jump over it, but rather to fade out entirely and to reappear as a different person through a very convenient loss of memory.

The two daughters, Mercy (Edna Simmons), the self-appointed family genius, and Jenni (Joanella Gibbons), who's eighteen and in love, fluttered about adding to the general confusion. The aged Laurette (Marjorie Linhares) hobbled in and out of the plot, bemoaning her poor health and her status in the society of the family and feeling sorry for herself in general. Hubert Cherry (David Jenny), the city's "oldest living volunteer fireman," kept the audience awake with his "alarms, excursions, bells."

Vilda (Shirle Wall) fit right into the scheme of things as the singing cook who tried to run this family that was already run by five individual "individuals." Five times in the first act alone, Vida "served notice" that she was "quittin'." She was still there when the curtain closed.

Sammy Pryce played the irresistible Andy Blayne, the likeable cause of many of the family's problems. You can't imagine a more despicable, pitiable, likeable character than this carefree, romance-seeking adventurer.

Mrs. Harriet Gilpin (Nancy Richards) was the only person in the play that did not, in the end, arouse the sympathies of the audience. When she was exposed to be a dishonest social climber, her remaining bits of popularity collapsed.

Since this year's senior class showed a conspicuous lack of experienced talent, Miss Hoyle had her hands full trying to keep ten fairly ordinary high school students acting in character with these rather unusual parts. Ralph couldn't seem to be quite domineering enough; Mercy's hair was never mussed up quite enough, and Hubert's voice insisted on jumping from soprano to bass on every sixth word. Maureen Mahoney had to take lessons to learn to play the piano on the stage without making faces to show the trouble she was having. Credit must be given for the great amount of work done by the prompter, Frances Muldoon. At rehearsals, she was constantly bothered by such questions as, "Do I drink the coffee or just stand here holding it?" or, "Is this the scene with the sandwiches?"

For some reason, high school actors and actresses, if they may be called that, shudder when faced with a romantic scene. During rehearsals, up to the week of the performance, observers of our troubles had to understand that when a performing couple nodded at each other while their faces turned crimson, they had just kissed.

ATHLETICS

The 1948 football season was one of the most prosperous Blue and White seasons in recent years. Boasting a record of 5 victories as against 3 defeats, this year's team will long be remembered. Its lopsided triumph over traditional rival, N. B. Vocational, was overwhelming. The Blue and White downed the Trade, 44-0! A great performance by the whole team provided the school with a cherished victory over rugged Attleboro High, the powerhouse of Bristol County, as a last minute pass clicked for the game winning T. D.

The big Red and White from across the river gave the spirited Fairhaven team its most bruising tussle of the year, as they pushed across two late scores to defeat the Blue in the traditional battle, with N. B. winning 27-14.

Good Luck in '49".

Sherman Kinney '49

Functioning like a well oiled machine, the Fairhaven cagers, under the expert guidance of Coach Entin, have amassed the best record in Bristol County so far this season. Riding the crest of an eight game winning streak, and with an overall record of nine victories and one defeat, the Blue and White quintet holds wins over such class A schools as Coyle, Taunton, N. B. Vocational, and N. B. High. The latter two are especially cherished victories.

Although, the flashy teamwork of the whole team has been noticeable, the brunt of the scoring has been carried by two tall sophomores, lanky Bart Leach and "Big Lou" Shurtleff. With only two seniors on the varsity squad, the prospects for 1949-50, are very promising.

CHEERLEADERS

This year's cheering squad, with only two veterans, has done much to maintain the fine Fairhaven School spirit. Their pep and enthusiasm has flowed into the cheering section, and the result has been an inspiring one. They have worked together for the team and have helped the team work together for Fairhaven.

Let's never lose that spirit, F. H. S.!

The members of the squad are the following: Maureen Mahoney, head cheerleader; Jo-Ann Walker, Barbara Strojny, Janice Tripp, Peggy d'Anjou, Ann Reece, and Jane Macomber.

Jo-Ann Walker '50

This year, the G. A. A. has a membership of over a hundred girls, which is a far larger group than in previous years. Mrs. Sullivan is the advisor of the organization. Part of their activities include selling refreshments at football games.

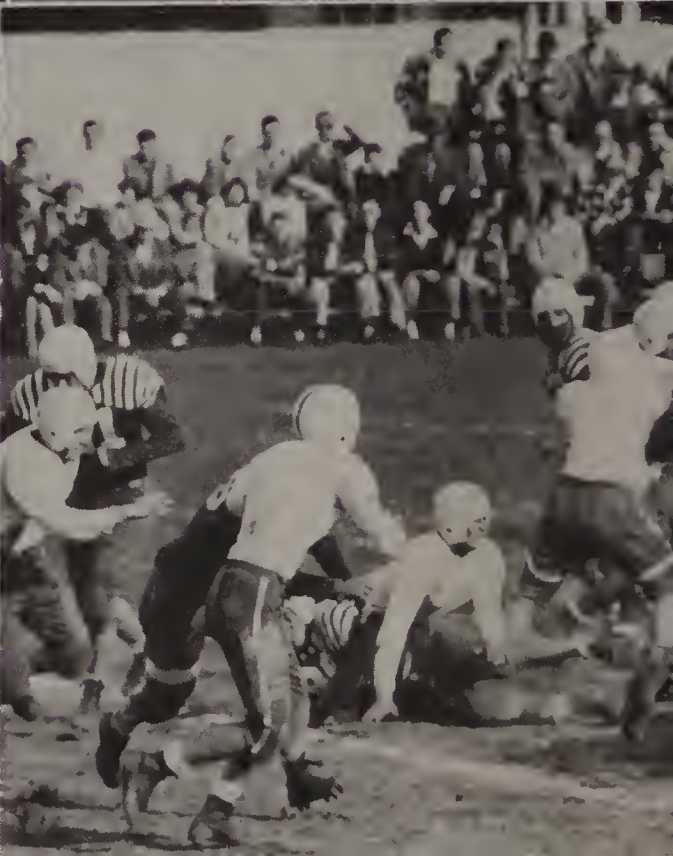

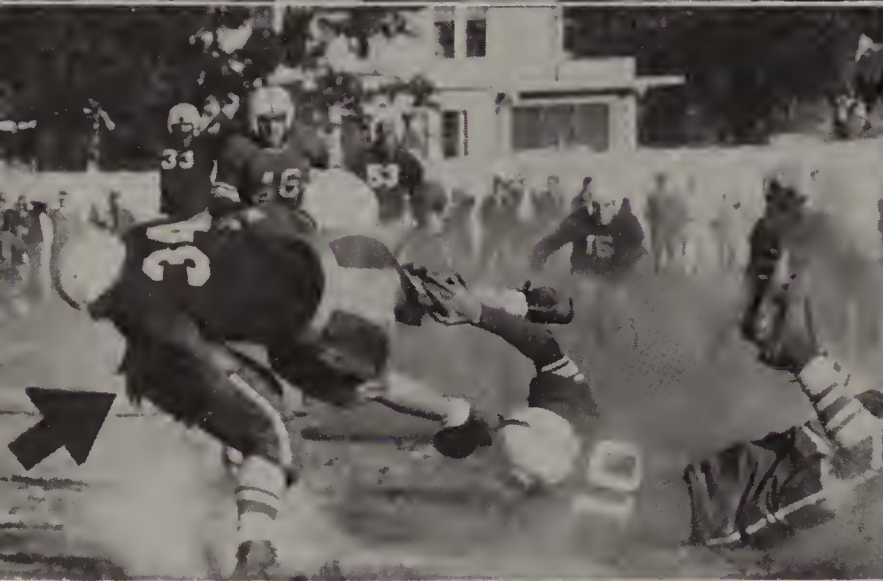

At the end of the school year, various awards are given to those who have earned a specific number of points. A special award is presented to the Senior with over eighty points to her credit. The girls hope to conclude the 1948-49 season by planning an outing in the spring.

The officers of the Association are the following: Hor Chin, President; Marjorie Linhares, Vice President; Shirley Marra, Secretary, and Mary Harding, Treasurer.

Doris Carter '49

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

This year ushered in the novelty of the Narragansett Girls' Basketball League. This league is divided into two sections with our section made up of teams from Vocational, Dartmouth, and Westport. The winner of this series plays the victor of the other section at Durfee. As a grand finale, the Narragansett League will hold a play day in March at Durfee. Thus far in the season, the fighting gals have one victory, one tie, and one loss under their belts and an undefeated second team.

Everyone is looking forward to the usual aggressive softball team which will carry the Fairhaven colors proudly and successfully on the diamond.
